

The airplane is one of the last solitudes I have away from cellular phone use. I do not want to listen to other people's conversation while at the gate waiting for a departure. I sure do not want to listen on a flight to loud talking people who want to make sure that I know what they do.

Anthony Stone